U. S. Investigators In Protest Against Use as Actual "Gunmen"

WASHINGTON — The crack sleuthing force built up by the Bureau of Investigation in its sub-rosa revolt against its chief, J. Edgar Hoover and higher-ups of the Department of Justice.

The basis of the revolt is that the Bureau's operatives have been turned into a bunch of gunmen.

This, they claim, is not what they were hired for. The Bureau of Investigation is charged with exactly what its name implies — investigation. This requires skill, intelligence, long training, not necessarily brawn. As a result, and because the depression made jobs scarce, the Bureau enlisted some of the highest types of college men.

Take the recent casualties in the Bureau. Samuel Cowley, killed by Baby Face Nelson; W. Carter Baum, killed in the Dillinger hunt; and Francis J. Lackey wounded in the Brook Hart hunt, all were not only college graduates but in addition had law degrees.

It is among these university-trained operatives that the result is most intense. There also is resentment on the part of these operatives, that the work of the Bureau, usually cloaked in secrecy, is attracting so much publicity. The effectiveness of the Bureau has brought about the full glare of publicity on some of its members, notably the chief, Hoover, and Melvin H. Purvis, his Chicago aide.

Unless conditions change, a gradual exodus of Justice Department operatives is not unlikely.

Georgia Corn

Georgia's famous corn whiskey may be very fine for some of the grizzled natives, but the members of the President's party don't think much of it.

David Lilienthal, Tennessee Valley mogul, was inquiring with a grin what the boys at Warm Springs thought of it. They shook their heads gravely. Lilienthal, feigning surprise, retorted:

"Well, the newspapermen ought to be able to stand it. As a matter of fact, this Georgia corn whiskey is very historic liquor."

With a wry face, some one in party snapped back:

"Yes, very historic. It's the reason Sherman made his march to the sea. He was looking for water."

Crack Down

It has been done so quietly that few know anything about it, but the President has just heaved a large sized brickbat at the motor moguls.

Basis for it was laid on November 2, when he announced a 90-day extension of the auto code. At that time he also promulgated a study of the possibility of changing automobile employment from a seasonal to an all-year-round basis.

This survey has now been launched, and therein lies the cup of gall for the motor moguls.

The latter had moved heaven and earth to persuade Roosevelt to have the study made by a board consisting of representatives of the Commerce, Interior and Labor departments, with Dr. Leo Wolman as chairman.

The President turned thumbs down on this proposal. He put the investigation in the hands of Leon Henderson, ex-officio member of the NRA board, and Dr. Isidor Lubin, head of Bu-

TRANSPACIFIC PLANE 'LOST' NEAR ISLANDS

Ulm Radios Gasoline Supply Low; Fails to Receive Beacons

NEARING HONOLULU

Coast Guard Cutter Is Ready to Assist Trio

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—With its gasoline supply slowly giving out the monoplane of Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm and his two companions was reported lost and flying blind over the Pacific ocean today within 200 miles of Hawaii.

A radio dispatch picked up by the Globe wireless reported Ulm was unable to pick up Hawaiian radio beacons.

The plight of the plane is considered so serious that a coast guard cutter is standing by ready to pick up the airmen should their plane crash into the ocean.

"We have very little gas left," Ulm radioed. "We need the beacon badly. We do not want to be forced to send an SOS. Tell them to shake it up with that beacon."

Later another radio was sent by Ulm which read "Tell them to use the emergency beacon we need help."

Co-Pilot G. M. Littlejohn was at the controls when the plane soared out through the Golden Gate late yesterday. He had some difficulty in getting the heavily loaded monoplane into the air. He taxied the entire three-eighths of a mile down the runway before getting off the runway. Three times the plane bounced one foot off the runway. On the fourth attempt, the Star of Australia soared upwards, narrowly skimming a row of automobiles at the end of the field.

Amelia Earhart Putnam, first woman to fly the Atlantic, was among the small crowd that waved them farewell.

The long over-water cruise is designed to prove feasibility of trans-Pacific commercial aviation.

STOPS PLANNED

Ulm expected to stop probably one day at Honolulu and then continue on to Fanning Island, 1,000 miles from Hawaii, thence to Suva, New Zealand and Australia.

The monoplane carried 700 gallons of gasoline which greatly retarded her normal 180-mile cruising speed to 138 miles an hour. After passing the halfway mark, and with the fuel supply diminishing at the rate of 28 gallons an hour into the two 225-horsepower Lynx motors, the monoplane picked up speed.

WHEELER FIELD, Honolulu, Dec. 4.—A crowd began gathering early today at this stopping point for trans-Pacific fliers when word flashed through Honolulu that Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm and his two companions were nearing Hawaii in their monoplane, "Star of Australia."

The populace, however, was not as excited by this flight as previous trans-Pacific dashes.

The people were more or less inclined to take trans-Pacific flights now as a matter of fact.

HEAVY SNOWS HIT MIDWEST

3 States in Grasp; Traffic Stopped, Schools Closed in Duluth.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Real winter weather settled on the upper central states today in the wake of a swirling snowstorm that swept Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Heavy snows crippled transportation in southeastern Minnesota, where roads were blocked by drifts ten feet high. A record December snowfall of sixteen inches halted street car traffic in Duluth, Minn., and forced the public schools to close.

Falling temperatures followed the snowstorm. While near normal, the temperature of 25 degrees here was the coldest of the season.

Shipping on upper Lake Michigan fought high winds that imperiled ten boats fighting to make their harbors.

Heavy snow fell at St. Paul and Minneapolis while from four to six inches of snow fell in South Dakota.

The temperature fell to a low of 31 degrees here Monday evening after reaching a high mark of 47 degrees during the day, Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather man, reported.

RECOUNT STARTS IN CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, Dec. 4.—Sixteen judges and clerks appointed by the Ross-co board of elections began recounting the ballots in 25 precincts Tuesday morning in the probate court room.

Twenty-three precincts are to be counted in the auditor race in which W. H. Hearnstein finished one vote ahead of Auditor Fred Schlegel. The former asked recount in nine and Schlegel in 14.

Mrs. Hettie Ott defeated for clerk asked recount in three precincts and L. G. Thomas defeated for treasurer asked for two. Five electors petitioned for the recount of one precinct in the recorder and sheriff contests in which W. T. McDougal and Howard Cutright lost.

It is believed the result will be known either late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

WOODLAND, Cal., Dec. 4.—With his frail "white hibiscus" wife, Helen Louise Doke, still in seclusion Judson C. Doke was to go on trial for his life for the second time here today, charged with the killing of Lamar Hollingshead, university poet.

District Attorney C. C. McDonald was grimly determined to send the 34-year-old war veteran to the gallows. A bitter fight over the selection of a jury was in prospect.

"If there are any women on the jury, I'm going to be dead sure of their identities," McDonald said.

At Doke's first trial last month, the jury was deadlocked seven to five in favor of acquittal. The women jurors were unanimous for acquittal. One of them said she believed "Doke had removed a menace to society."

GOOD HOLIDAY OUTLOOK SEEN

Santa Claus To Be Good To Business World, Indications Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The department of commerce believes Santa Claus is going to be more generous with the business world this year than he has been since 1930.

A "Merry Christmas" for business means "more spending" and John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, predicted today the prospects are bright.

The recent spurt in retail trade sales is the basis for "sound recovery," he said, and he cited the following reports of government statisticians as proof more money will pass across the counters this year than in any since 1930.

Higher factory payrolls, increased farm income, greater federal expenditures on PWA-job-creating projects, and more stable banking conditions.

Dickinson said there is more employment and "more money in the peoples' pockets," that the people are in a more optimistic state of mind and the urge to spend, but not recklessly, has permeated the entire country.

Soviet May Execute 80 in Death of Secretary

MOSCOW, Dec. 4.—Thousands bearing banners with mourning inscriptions thronged the route between the railway station and the Kremlin today when the body of Sergei M. Kirov, slain secretary of the Communist party central committee, arrived here and was carried behind a guard of honor to lie in state in the hall of columns.

Thousands of persons stood in line for hours to pay homage at the bier of the assassinated leader.

Meanwhile 80 persons were in jail expected to be victims of the firing squad in a drive against the republic's enemies as a result of the assassination.

They are not charged directly with complicity in the assassination, but with "negligence of their duty in protection of the state." Although the Circleville city treasury was to be augmented today by an addition of $16,254.30 as its share of the semi-annual distribution of real and utilities tax money from the county auditor's office the city's financial situation was by no means a rosy one.

GAS USED IN BUCYRUS RIOT

Sheriff Declares War Against Band of Roving Pickets Causing Trouble.

BUCYRUS, Dec. 4.—Seeking to curb strike disorders which led to the use of tear gas during the night to disperse groups engaged in hand-to-hand fighting, authorities today roped off streets in the vicinity of the Kaynee Garment Manufacturing plant that was being picketed by 100 striking workers of the two Cleveland factories of the concern.

Attempting to force the 112 women workers in the local plant to join their strike, the pickets descended on the plant early yesterday in what Sheriff Arthur Stuckert described as an "ugly mood." Their presence led to intermittent clashes between deputies and the pickets and was climaxed by the hand-to-hand tussles.

Sheriff Stuckert declared that he also planned action to curb the activities of roving bands of pickets who descended on the homes of five girl workers and stoned windows in the residences. He threatened that his special force of 20 deputy sheriffs would be enlarged from the ranks of war veterans if the pickets continued their alleged "aggressive attitude."

JUDGES FAVOR CONSERVANCY; FUNDS NEEDED

Two Hours Required Before Approval Is Voted By 17 Barristers

TO MOVE AT ONCE

Counties Are Expected to Raise 7 Millions

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—Formal creation of the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district by approval of a court of 17 judges today led to a prediction by Allen I. Pretzman, counsel for the proposed $36,000,000 project, that the district's request for federal financing could be submitted to the PWA shortly after January 1.

After only two hours of deliberation, the common pleas judges from the 17 affected counties in the Scioto and Sandusky river valleys, approved tentative plans for the chain of 39 dams and by their action formally created the conservancy district—modeled after the Muskingum conservancy plan.

TRIO APPOINTED

Coincident with their decision, the judges appointed E. B. Smith, of Fremont, E. F. Bearce, of Chillicothe, and H. Albert Smith, of Columbus, as directors of the district. Under the three men, who will serve for three, five and seven years respectively, detailed plans for the actual construction of the chain of dams that will connect the Ohio River and Lake Erie will be drawn up by government and private engineers.

The judges also approved an initial grant of $15,000 to the district for expenses in the preparation of the official plans and their submission to Washington along with a request for $24,000,000 in Public Works administration funds to aid in construction.

The initial expenditure, which ultimately will amount to about $25,000, will be assessed from the 17 counties to be benefited by the proposed system of reservoirs on the basis of tax duplicates. If Federal aid for the project is secured, the counties will be paid back their shares in the initial expenditures through PWA funds.

PAROLE BOARD ASKS RIGID PENALTY FOR CARRYING GUNS

FIRST REPORT URGES ACTION

Overcrowding of Hospitals, Prisons Aired; Kidnapers Warned by Ohio Board

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4—Stating that "it is a matter of public scandal that gangsters engaged in bank holdups and other robberies are armed with the latest models of machine guns, sawed-off shotguns and other effective firearms," the Ohio Board of Paroles in making its first report since it was organized in its present form in 1931 today recommended more rigid penalties for the crime of carrying concealed weapons.

Simultaneously, the parole board warned that kidnapers would receive no mercy at its hands, reported that state hospitals were overcrowded, claimed that it had saved the state $1,500,000 a year, pointed to an increase in the negro population of prisons, and declared that 90 per cent of convicts paroled never return to prison and that 72 per cent of them are gainfully employed.

STATISTICS SHOWN

In its 51-page review of its work from August 3, 1931 to November 1, 1934, the board also listed 18 pages of tabulated statistics showing the trend in crimes and disclosed that 342 of 4,283 prisoners in Ohio Penitentiary were illiterate while 147 received college training, 860 had gone to high school and 2,934 had attended grade schools.

Discussing concealed weapons, the board recommended the penalty be raised from a term of from one to three years to a sentence of from one to 10 years. It asserted that "the law forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons may be made a much more effective instrumentality in combatting crime by being strengthened and rigorously enforced." It also recommended that the legislature revise the statute governing the crime.

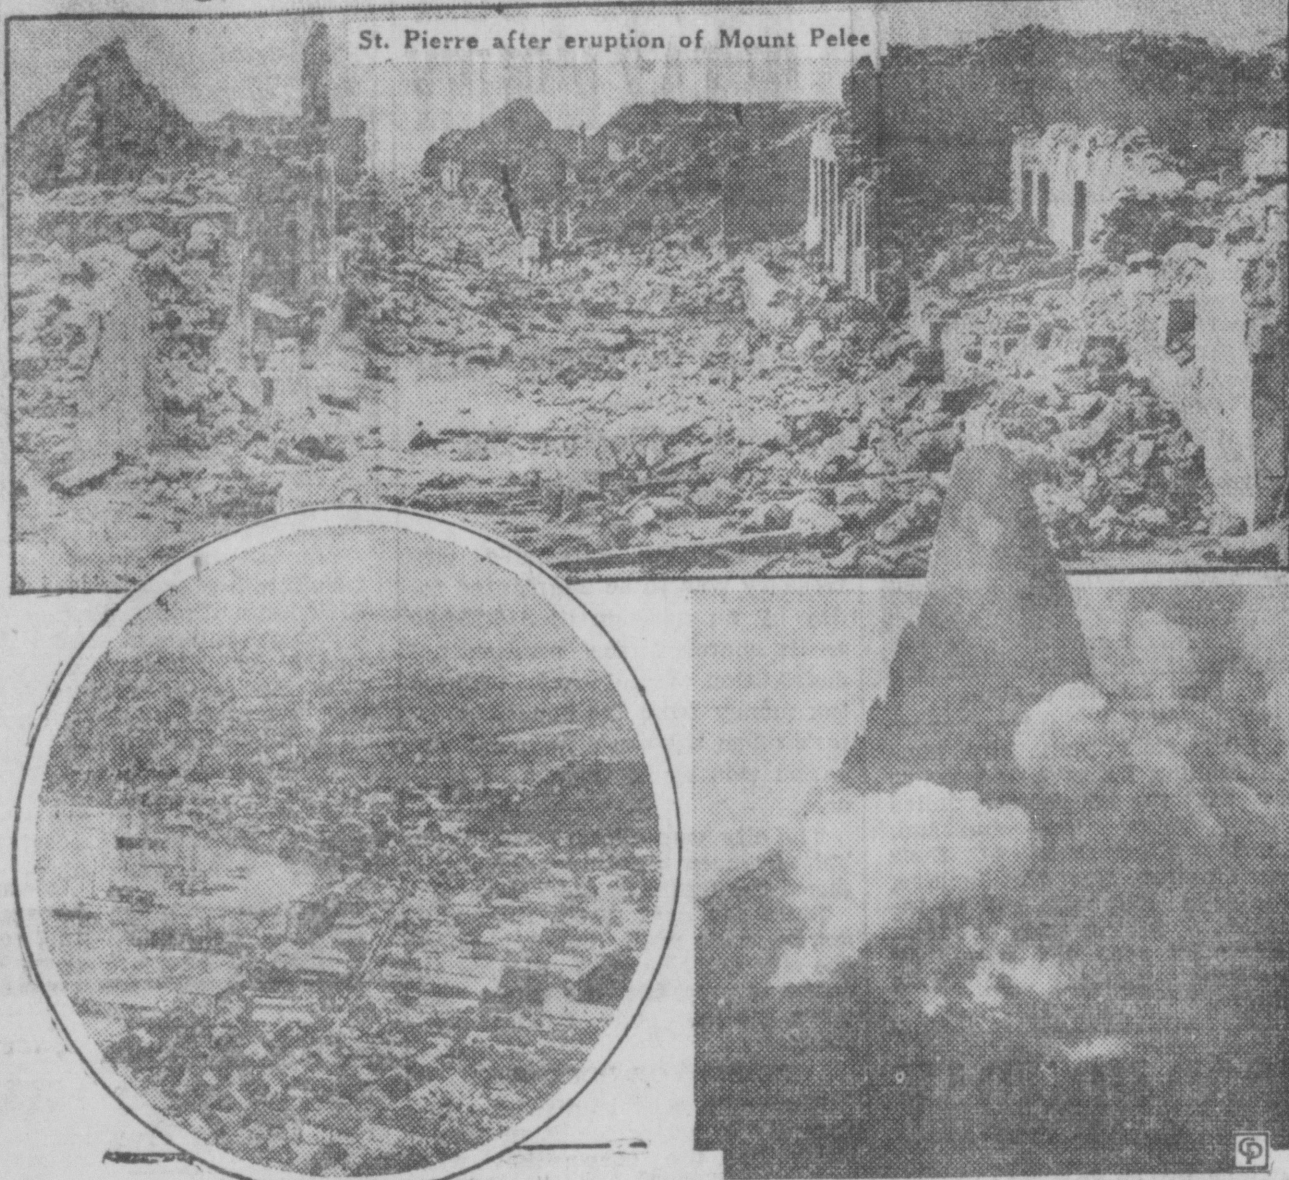

"But the enforcement of that law alone will not remove the menace of the armed criminal," the report said. "He presents a problem that demands drastic, nationwide action. Crime prevention in America will be tremendously advanced once the criminal had been disarmed."

"ABHORRENT CRIME"

Commenting on kidnaping, the parole board said that "probably no crime is more abhorrent to the American people than has aroused greater indignation that of kidnaping and child-stealing." It pointed out that the penalty in Ohio had been raised from a term of from one to 20 years to life imprisonment. The board, pointing out that the penalty in Ohio had been raised from a term of from one to 20 years to life imprisonment. The board, pointing out that it had refused paroles to three convicts sentenced under the old one-to-20 year statute, added: "That clearly defined the attitude of the board of parole."

Celebrate The Holiday With Delicious, Unusual Servings

The joyous holiday season offers many opportunities to get away from the everyday routine of menus and table settings. It is a gay looking table that is graced with a beautifully roasted bird, and when it is stuffed with a tasty dressing, it is even more delicious than it looks.

A pecan dressing may have grown out of the chestnut dressing idea of the past, but the use of pecans has greatly enhanced the charm of the holiday birds.

Pecan Dressing

- 1 1/2 C. soft bread crumbs
- 1 1/2 C. cooked rice
- 1 1/2 C. sausage meat (about 3/4 lb.)
- 3/4 C. chopped celery
- 1/2 tsp. grated lemon rind
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 3/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 C. milk
- 2 Tbsp. hot fat
- 1/2 C. chopped nuts

Mix together all the ingredients and cook for 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add the nuts last, and stuff chicken or turkey. A 5-pound bird can be stuffed with this quantity of stuffing.

Date Pie

Dates are in season, and a creamy, rich date pie surely merits a place on a holiday season table.

- 1/4 C. soft shortening
- 3/4 C. sugar
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 C. milk
- 1 C. pitted dates cut in small pieces

Plain pastry

Cream together butter, sugar and salt, then stir in the eggs, milk and dates. Pour mixture into pan lined with plain pastry. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees for 10 minutes; then reduce heat to moderate 325 degrees and bake 40 minutes longer.

Pineapple Salad Supreme

- 6 slices canned pineapple
- 1 pkg. cream cheese
- Lettuce
- 24 halves walnut meats
- Currant jelly

Spread slices of pineapple with a layer of cream cheese. Decorate each slice using a half of a nutmeat on each quarter. Place in a deep cup of lettuce and in the center place a teaspoon of currant jelly. Garnish at one side with a spoonful of mayonnaise or French dressing.

Frozen Cake

- 2 tsp. granulated gelatin
- 3 Tbsp. cold water
- 3/4 C. strong coffee beverage
- 1/2 C. granulated sugar
- 1 pt. heavy cream whipped
- 1 C. chopped Brazil nuts
- 2 doz. small lady fingers

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS AS CHRISTMAS PARTY

The December meeting of Mrs. George Marion's Sunday school class of the Methodist church was a Christmas party at Mrs. Marion's home on the Lancaster-pk.

Mrs. Marion was assisted in extending hospitalities by Mrs. Wendell Boyer, Mrs. Ralph Wallace and Miss Virginia Nelson.

A merry hour was enjoyed by the group of twenty-two members when gifts were exchanged. Gifts were also brought by the members to be given to the needy in the city.

Mrs. Vaughn Crites (Alice Briggs) and Mrs. George Rignin (Aubrey Lemley) recent brides and members of the class were presented lovely gifts from the class.

Christmas colors were carried out in the delicious lunch served at small tables which were lighted with red candles in green holders.

A business meeting was conducted and officers elected for the ensuing year. Miss Virginia Nelson was named president; Miss Elizabeth Tolbert, vice president; Miss Helen Yates, secretary and Mrs. Thaddeus Cromley, treasurer.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 14 at the church with Mrs. P. S. Herberholz, Miss Bernice Evans, Miss Mildred Ruffer and Miss Katherine Kirkpatrick as hostesses.

MONDAY CLUB MEETS, DISCUSSES DRAMA

The regular meeting of the Monday club was held at the Memorial hall last evening. The president, Mrs. Hildeburn Jones, opened the meeting and then read "A Christmas Menu."

A short business meeting was conducted. Mrs. Charles Gilmore announced that the sale of articles for the blind would be held Dec. 17 at the club room and Dec. 18 and 19 at the Southern Ohio Electric Co.'s office.

Mrs. Fred Griner, substituting for Miss Nell Weldon, chairman of the drama division, presided after the business meeting.

The subject was "Trend in Modern Drama." Mrs. Griner spoke of the decline of the legitimate stage, the causes and the hopeful signs of a return to its former popularity.

The success of so many dramas, recently presented makes one optimistic for the future.

Miss Elizabeth Dunlap told of several of the recent successful dramas and actors in these plays, especially emphasizing the success of Catherine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

Mrs. Tom Renick in her usual charming manner reviewed one of the recent popular dramas.

Miss Ada Clark of New York City is here visiting her brother Fred C. Clark.

About fifty members enjoyed the meeting and the refreshments served at its close under the chairmanship of Miss Margaret Rooney.

COUNTERFEITERS BALKED

CIVILIZATION once burned, branded or hanged without delay "coiners" or counterfeiters of money; today the penalties are only less severe. But the trade still goes on, as the latest roundup in New York proved. Eleven men and a woman are the latest quarry of the secret service, aided by local officers, and it seems to have been a "good collar." At any rate, about $2,000,000 in bad money has been impounded.

Skill with engraved plates, inks, paper making and chemicals is needed in counterfeiting, to say nothing of a trained personnel in the art of "shoving." Yet year after year, in the face of all discouragements, counterfeiting goes on, in secret places, under more than secret conditions, with almost certain detection as reward. Possibly the least exploited, yet most persistent, section of the secret service under the treasury department is that which has to do with counterfeiters. Yet discovery, conviction go on all the time with mostly only the high spots, as in the present instance, making the first page.

Counterfeiting is world-wide, international, expert. So are the men who track counterfeiters down. Robert Godby, director in New York, acting under Secretary Morgenthau in Washington, and his associates have cause for self-congratulation. The prisoners are a strange lot, no "second-story men," minor pilferers. After all, what have they gotten out of it? Probably long terms in prison; a reputation in their peculiar circle of having failed. But the law will tell you there is always a supply of substitutes ready to "take a chance."

DISMAL NOTE

A WORLD filled with woe of infinite varieties is made no happier by the news that seven carloads of spinach are about to leave Lenexa, Kansas, for markets throughout the country, ultimately to find their way into peaceful homes in which there are children who are deserving only of kindness. The situation is freighted with added dismay in consequence of the further announcement that there still remains at Lenexa "enough spinach of good quality to load 50 additional cars."

Coming at the approach of the Christmas season, when peace and good will should prevail, and when the land is struggling desperately, and with some show of success, to shake off the grip of economic depression, the news from Lenexa is discouraging. Even now, long before the actual arrival of the spinach, we can see adamant mothers, grim-faced and steely-eyed and animated by a fanatic urge, approach their innocent and helpless children with the green stuff, insensitive to all considerations of charity and mercy.

It is a hard world at best and it is made no easier by the enterprise of the farmers of Lenexa and those of Chrystal City, Texas, which delights in the rather dubious distinction of being "the recognized spinach capital of the world."

North and West are ready to rule the house, leaving East and South holding just a bunch of duces.

Fear of death is difficult to reconcile with the manner in which some motorists round a curve.

New York had a wolf scare and a ghost scare on the same day. There haven't been any Indians around lately.

Ventilating systems soon will be perfected so it won't be necessary to open windows. On trains it isn't even possible.

The new Premier of France starts with the advantage of being six feet, six inches tall, which is rather fortunate. The job plays havoc with the stature of statesmen.

The 1935 cars haven't put in an appearance as yet but it is safe to assume that they will be changed just enough to make the motoring world dissatisfied with the old ones.

After all, it becomes rather difficult to understand the reluctance to approve a national lottery when we think of the freedom and abandon with which the people once purchased Peruvian bonds.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXIV

Caroline started to express sympathy to Mrs. Barnes, but was interrupted by the woman whose name she did not know. "I'll have to run, Sarah," the woman said, "my folks ain't had their supper yet."

Mrs. Barnes nodded and she departed. "My Jim hasn't got home," the doctor ordered, but I'll have to tell him about Lillie—he worships her so, and this is no time for him to be worried out of work and all."

"How is Lillie?" Caroline asked. "She's pretty sick, but we can't tell yet. I wish I could get the medicine the doctor ordered, but I'll have to wait for Jim. Mrs. Grobel here hasn't got a car in her family either, and it's too far to walk to a drug store. And the doctor said to get it, as soon as I could."

"Give me the prescription," Caroline said. "I'll get it for you when I've been to Blake's for mother." When she was gone Mrs. Grobel said: "You might have introduced me more proper like, Sarah, but never mind. I'll bet they're having ice cream again. I never heard tell of such extravagance."

Caroline hurried. But before she reached home her father had gone off with the car. "I'll have to ask Malcolm to take me on his motorcycle," she said to her mother, and was gone in a flash.

The ice cream melted in the carton.

Malcolm was just finishing a generous portion of peach cobbler when she entered the Stuarts' dining room. He too was dressed in clothes he wore to the U. "I'm afraid we'll be late tonight," Caroline said, and told him what she wanted. He said: "I feel like playing hooky anyway. Let's go to a movie."

At the drug store they waited half an hour while the prescription was made up. A half hour in which trouble continued to stalk the Barnes household. When they arrived there they found a small crowd gathered before the house. The air was charged with the horror of a serious accident.

Caroline went in at once. Malcolm remained outside. Some one told him that Jim Barnes had just been brought home badly hurt. He'd been getting off a street car and was hit by an automobile. No, he didn't seem to be dying, but one of his legs was smashed, Malcolm's informer guessed.

Malcolm was spared hearing further gruesome details. Caroline came hurrying out to him, white and trembling. "You've heard?" he said. "Oh, how terrible!"

He led her down the walk to his motorcycle. "Let's go and get Mom," he said steadily. "They just brought him in," Caroline choked. "I'm to telephone Dr. Shultz. If I can't get him I'm going to call an ambulance. No one in there seemed to know what to do."

"I know," Malcolm said. "Can you go on alone?" The thought in his mind was that Barnes might need a tourniquet on his injured leg. He pushed his way into the house, and found someone holding a glass of water to the groaning man's lips. Malcolm caught it. "He may be hurt internally," he said shortly, "don't give him anything to drink."

He examined the leg and found that it was bleeding profusely. No one else in the room knew how to apply a tourniquet, but Malcolm succeeded in getting the things he wanted. It was crude work, but Dr. Shultz said when he arrived shortly that it was effective. He had, he added, summoned an ambulance.

Another physician also arrived, one sent by the traction company upon receiving the report of the conductor. He examined the patient and approved his immediate transfer to a hospital.

The clangor and rush accompanying the ambulance brought further excitement to the block, but when

Jim Barnes had been taken away in it and those in command in the house had cleared it of people who could not be of use Mrs. Stuart was found to be the one who was giving orders.

She had sent Malcolm away too and he went to see that Caroline was all right. The girl was trying to quiet her mother's upset nerves. Malcolm did not go in.

"Why, in heaven's name, if you must have an admirer," Alva said snappishly, "don't you choose someone of your own station in life?" It really goes without saying that this association of yours with that young man."

Caroline turned away without answering. She was too tired to argue all over again that Malcolm was of her station in life as she saw it. Money did not count now. Only sides, it had quickly become apparent that the experience she had gained at the Junior League's day nursery was broader than she had realized. Lillie seemed to find her ministrations soothing. And in that fact Caroline found balm for the feeling of inferiority she persistently crept into her morale.

As the child's temperature mounted, showing each day a higher point, the doctor ordered cool, wet wrappings for the burning body. Someone was needed in constant attendance at the bedside. Caroline gave up her studies at the U and spent the time with Lillie. Sight of the poor little blotched body brought a sob to her throat, when she lifted away the towels that so soon became heated and replaced them with others wrung from cool fresh water.

For a moment the restless head would lie still, the thin arms relax on one of the many fine linen sheets from the Rutledge supply, then the tossing and agony would begin anew.

It was Caroline who convinced Mrs. Barnes that the child's curls must be shorn as the doctor said. It was Caroline who kept ice in the house, who brought extra pillows so that they might be constantly changed and cooled, who bought the rubber sheet for the child to lie on, who brought rubber-soled shoes for those who shared in the nursing, who paid for medical supplies from her own meagre wages.

Delirium came in the third week and then Caroline, who was beginning to feel languid and uneasy, could not desert. Lillie called for her constantly with the frantic, unrelenting appeal of a sufferer who wants only relief from physical torment. Mrs. Barnes was hurt that in so short a time Caroline's ability to ease her pain had become so fixed in the child's mind that in unconsciousness is replaced filial yearning.

But she was too grateful to Caroline to show how she felt about that. And there was more need of the girl's help now than before. For, as Mrs. Rutledge had feared, the typhoid had broken out in other homes, threatened to reach epidemic proportions in South Town.

She was frantic with worry over Caroline, and time proved her fears justified. Caroline dragged along, more or less an "ambulatory case," before loss of strength finally drove her to bed.

She became so ill that her life was despaired of. The doctor said bluntly that she had no reserve of vitality and only expert medical attention and skilled nursing could save her. There were other cases in the block; the street there was closed to general traffic, the clocks in the Rutledge house were muffled, the doorbells were silenced and carpet was laid on the outside steps. The door latches were padded with felt and every hinge about the place was oiled. The house was almost as silent as a tomb. Those within it spoke in whispers, and yet at intervals some sound, vastly magnified by the girl's sharpened hearing, brought the flicker of nervous shock over her prostrate body.

AT THE GRAND

The public recognized her before her own studio, this pretty little Bette Davis, who has the leading role in the First National picture, "Fog Over Frisco," now showing at the Grand Theatre. She was a star with the picture fans before her bosses realized what a strong pulling card she was. It worked out better this way, because Bette's public was lined up at the box office waiting for her when she got there.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Another "Cinderella story" has come true in Hollywood! The youthful charm of Jean Parker, that little more than a year and a half ago graced a poster for the Olympic Games, has carried her to the highest possible position in a screen career. She was recently given full star rating on the current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer season program with "Have a Heart" as her first starring vehicle to be shown Wednesday and Thursday at the Cliftona Theatre.

This places Miss Parker in the distinguished group of star notables that includes Greta Garbo, Marion Davies, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery.

"My one great hope is that I will always be able to retain my own personality through every role that I portray on the screen," declared Miss Parker when the honor of stardom was conferred upon her.

High Blood Pressure Is Common Symptom Here

"High Pressure" Living Is a Frequent Cause of This Trouble, Says Dr. Copeland

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

RECENTLY I DINED with a medical man from England. During the course of our conversation he referred to the splendid physique of most Americans, but wondered why so many ultimately succumb to high blood pressure, heart disease and other disturbances of the blood system.

It is a fact that high blood pressure is all too common in this country. High blood pressure and the things that produce it are a menace to health and long life.

It is the evil result of faulty eating habits, lack of relaxation and rest, and living under "high pressure." If we are to avoid this trouble we must cultivate the habit of moderate living and learn how to relax both physically and mentally.

Practice Moderation
I am sure you will agree with me when I say too many persons are careless about health habits. As a group, Americans are prone to excessive and hurried eating, irregular eating hours, and inadequate hours of rest. In order to reduce to the utmost the stress and strain of modern life, it is essential to have reasonable rest periods and long hours of sleep at night.

We are all more or less interested in sports and athletics. But it is important to realize that such activities are of value if taken always in a spirit of fun and play. When indulged in perpetually as strenuous, bitter contests, harm may follow. Like other habits and activities, sports should be practiced in moderation.

While these are a few of the causes which encourage high blood pressure, such factors as heredity, overweight, faulty eating, constitutional disorders and infections must not be overlooked. But even when these underlying causes are removed, freedom from high blood pressure cannot be hoped for unless certain hygienic measures are enforced. Perhaps when everyone becomes familiar with the dangers of neglecting the human mechanism, the occurrence of high blood pressure will be much more infrequent.

Not a Disease

Bear in mind that high blood pressure is not a disease, but is a sign of some disorder within the body. It can be accepted as an index of the general health. Any alteration from the normal blood pressure, whether it becomes high or low, should be considered a warning sign. It should result in serious effort to correct the underlying cause. Those individuals who have normal blood pressure are fortunate and should do all they can to keep it.

Too many persons fail to realize that they are suffering from high blood pressure. In consequence they do not take the necessary precautions before some serious damage has been done. Often it is too late to correct the disturbance and all further damage to the body. The practice of making regular visits to the doctor would have spared you this danger.

If you have not recently consulted with your physician I would advise that you do so now. Have your blood pressure taken at least once a year and more frequently if the doctor thinks it necessary. If you are told you have high blood pressure do not become alarmed. There is no need for apprehension providing you follow the advice and instructions given.

CONTEST TO SCALE DOWN INCOME TAX RATES STARTS

SPONSOR SAYS RATE NOT HIGH

"People Will Vote Much Higher Rate," Ward Warns; Dr. Schultz Heard.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—The controversial subject of rates in the Ward income tax bill, a part of the 4-point emergency tax program before the "lame duck" session of the Ohio legislature, today drew the attention of the senate tax-ticker committee.

As the bill now stands in the form in which the lower house passed it, along with a 3 per cent retail sales tax, an increase in utilities excise tax and re-enactment of the 1-cent liquid fuel tax, the rates are 2 to 6 per cent on earned income; and 3 to 9 per cent on "unearned" incomes, including those in excess of $25,000.

SCALE DOWN RATES

There was every indication that anti-income tax members would put up a bitter fight to scale down these rates to 1 to 5 per cent on earned income and one and one-half times that amount on unearned income.

Sensitive to the undercurrent in the senate against the adoption of any income tax at whatever rates, Rep. P. E. Ward (R) Chardon, author of the House bill, appeared before the tax committee to warn the members that if his bill is not passed "a far more drastic" income tax in all probability will be voted by the people at the next general election.

"The rate even at the top of this bill—9 per cent on unearned income" said Ward, "is not very high compared to the tax burden on general property. It is the equivalent of only about 5.4 mills on the dollar, whereas the real estate tax runs as high as 30 mills in many instances."

Sen. D. J. Gunsett (D) Van Wert, tax committee chairman, doubted that the income tax bill would be reported out by his group before tomorrow. Nor was he optimistic about the senate reaching a vote today on the sales tax measure, already recommended for passage by his committee.

Before taking up the income tax bill the committee informally agreed to sidetrack the Pollock liquid fuel tax bill adopted by the House and consider in its stead a similar bill by Sen. W. H. Berner (D) Monroeville.

Chief difference in the House and Senate bills is that Berner's does not contain a clause exempting material denominated "liquid fuel" but used as an ingredient in the manufacture of paint. The Pollock bill exempts all "liquid fuel" not consumed as such. Some senate tax committee members frown upon the exemption.

FOR SALES TAX

The tax committee heard Dr. Arch D. Schultz, research director for the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, condemn a state income tax which he said was unnecessary. The 3 per cent sales tax and affiliated measures, he contended, would adequately meet all of Ohio's needs for new revenue.

Recalling that Tax Commissioner Carlton Dargusch had estimated the emergency 4-point program including an income tax, would under the House allocation plan, provide the public schools with $55,800,000 annually, Dr. Schultz pointed out that this is almost 60 per cent of the total anticipated expenditures for schools during the coming year.

Fight Long's College Censorship

Twenty-six students have been suspended at the Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, as the aftermath of a student fight against the censorship of the Revell's, college newspaper, which resulted from the paper's criticism of Senator Huey P. Long.

GROWERS BEGIN PRUNING EARLY

Fruit growers are away to an early start with their pruning this season. They have begun work on their bearing apple trees, according to F. H. Beach, extension horticulturist for the Ohio State University.

Beach, author of a bulletin "Pruning Fruit Trees," available from county agricultural agents, believes that the pruning job should begin with the bearing apple trees, plums and sour cherries.

Grape pruning time comes in February, he declares, before the sap begins to run in the vines. Pruned later, they bleed.

After the severe part of the winter season is over, in March, Beach's calendar calls for pruning of peaches, raspberries and sweet cherries.

In general, says the horticulturist, young trees respond better to spring pruning, especially fall-set young trees; pruning these should always be deferred until spring, regardless of kind and variety.

Pruning offers the best way to eliminate from the crop the small, two-and-a-quarter inch apples, the unprofitable size, according to Beach. It also leads to better color, opening the tree to the sunlight, besides permitting more thorough spraying.

California Names New Coach

Leonard "Stub" Allison

William "Navy Bill" Ingram

Resignation of William "Navy Bill" Ingram, as head football coach at the University of California was followed immediately by appointment of Leonard "Stub" Allison, Ingram's first assistant, as his successor. Ingram, former Navy coach, whose $10,000 contract still had a year to run, announced he was quitting football to enter business in San Francisco. Criticism of his regime by alumni and undergraduates had been severe, and in reply Ingram blamed lack of co-operation on the student body for California's losses. Allison is an ex-assistant coach at Wisconsin.

Central Press Captains' Team Announced; Borries Placed At Quarterback.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—Three athletes from the far west, one from the south, four from the east—if you count Pittsburgh in that category—and three from the mid-west comprise the all-American team selected by captains of major football teams throughout the country for the Central Press association.

The first team includes: Ends, Moscrip of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota; tackles, Steen of Syracuse and Theodoratus of Washington state; guards, Hartwig of Pitt and Monahan of Ohio State; center, Shotwell of Pitt; quarterback, Borries of Navy; halfbacks, Lund of Minnesota and Howell of Alabama; fullback, Grayson of Stanford.

Ability rather than the size of the player's scrapbook decided the captain's team.

No Ohio State man made the second or third teams but Wendt, Hamrick, Jones, Wetzel and Heekin received honorable mention.

STUDENT WRITERS NAME ALL-STATE

By GILSON WRIGHT

Five University of Cincinnati players, two each from Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio, and one each from Miami and Marshall make up an all-Buckeye conference first team as selected in a poll of student sports editors of Buckeye conference college newspapers, which was announced Tuesday.

On the second team were five Ohio Wesleyan men, two each from Cincinnati and Miami, and one each from Marshall and Ohio. John Turley, Ohio Wesleyan ace quarterback; Ollie Savatsky, Miami, end, and Art Lewis, Ohio tackle, were unanimous first team choices. The first team is as follows:

Savatsky, Miami, LE; Lewis, Ohio, LT; Mills, Ohio Wesleyan, LG; Williams, Cincinnati, C; Priode, Ohio, RG; G. Smith, Cincinnati, RT; Duncan, Cincinnati, RE; Turley, Ohio Wesleyan, QB; Zontini, Marshall, LH; Nolting, Cincinnati, RH; Gant, Cincinnati, FE.

This team, of interest because it represents the student viewpoint, was chosen by Alan R. Vogeler, Cincinnati, of the Cincinnati Bearcat; Willis Brown, Mt. Blanchard, of the Ohio Wesleyan Transcript; Frank Burns, Cleveland, of the Miami Student; Morry Rabin, Cleveland, of the Ohio Green and White, and Earl Zeller-frow, Kittanning, Pa., of the Marshall Parthenon.

TEMPLE PICKED FOR SOUTH GAME

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 4.—The Owls of Temple University, coached by Pop Warner, will journey south to meet the Green wave of Tulane in New Orleans' first Sugar Bowl classic to be played here on New Year's day.

This was announced today by the Sugar Bowl committee after receiving acceptances from both teams late last night. Temple, rated as one of the outstanding teams of the east, was invited because of its impressive record under the direction of Coach Warner, originator of the "double wingback system." The Owls were undefeated this year, although in ties with Indiana and Bucknell.

Given in memory of John P. Poe, '95, third of the famous Poe brothers, who was killed during the World War while serving with the black watch, the cup is awarded annually to a member of the Princeton varsity eleven who has shown himself outstanding in loyalty, courage, modesty, perseverance and good sportsmanship.

PICKED FOR THE MIDDLE OF ALL-STAR EASTERN LINE

Captains of eastern teams and others which met eastern opponents select these three men as the middle of the all-star eastern line. The guards are Hartwig and Stillman, and the center is Shotwell, brilliant pivot of Jock Sutherland's University of Pittsburgh eleven.

HOW to DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Third Movement

NOW we are in the THIRD MOVEMENT of that sensational new dance of joy and romance, "THE CONTINENTAL," as interpreted by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee." It is the Tap Step.

The couple separate, facing each other, and execute a triple tap and sideways-walk from right to left, and back again, through sixteen beats, or four measures.

The gentleman strikes his right heel against the floor, then does two taps with his left foot—one as it goes forward and one as it comes back. This is accomplished in one beat of music . . . one count of the four-count measures. It is a rapid, One-Two-Three-to-One proposition.

On the upbeat of Four, first measure, the gentleman picks up his left foot to strike the heel on the floor at the first count of the second measure. On the count, Two, it is returned to a position beside the right foot. On Three, the right foot is advanced and the heel struck against the floor. It is returned on Four; whereupon the routine is repeated once.

More than that, he gave these two young men full power to pick their own assistants and to hold open hearings.

This last authority is something that the auto manufacturers have vigorously opposed throughout the history of the code.

Henderson and Lubin lost no time in making the most of their opportunity. As their chief aide—the man who will actually direct the study—they appointed Richard H. Lansburgh, another liberal economist, Secretary of Labor in the first Pinchot cabinet in Pennsylvania, and a former industrial engineer in Detroit.

The choice of Henderson and Lubin was a bitter blow, but the enlistment of Lansburgh is, for the motor barons, adding insult to injury.

White House Key

Emergency Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins was telling some friends what a "great guy" he considered Chester C. Davis, Administrator of the AAA.

"Chet's a fine fellow," Hopkins said. "He and I are very good friends. Why, we even got out Phi Beta Kappa keys in the same manner."

"How was that?" one of the friends inquired. Hopkins grinned: "Well, now, just ask some of the boys around town how they got their keys. You can get them in college, or you can get them the way I did—a long time after I left college. All you got to do is have a friend on the PBK committee."

"Say," observed the friend, "you know the President has a key, and he didn't get his in college."

"Oh, oh," laughed Hopkins. "My error."

Merry-Go-Round

Carpets, drapes and other dirt-collecting furnishings have been banished from the new White House offices. The floors are covered with moppable fabric and the walls are painted. SMITH TELLS 17 JUDGES OF FIRE DANGERS

Inadequate Water Supply Is Seen as Another Reason for River Conservancy.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—The menace of fire, which for years has threatened the entire towns of Delaware and Circleville was seen driven back here today by the action of the 17-judge conservancy court which approved the creation of the Scioto-Sandusky Water Conservancy District.

The judges' decision marked the first step in a plan which will furnish the towns a water supply sufficient for both domestic and fire fighting purposes throughout the year.

SMITH STATEMENT

Although not called to the stand at the conservancy district hearing yesterday, James I. Smith, head of a large canning firm at Circleville, and John C. Reichelderfer, county surveyor of Delaware, both testified through depositions that present water supplies of the two towns made it impossible for firemen to properly combat fires.

Smith's testimony, in effect, was that "for the last several years

Alleged Extortionists Held

George Carpenter

Bernice Carpenter

Held on charges of attempted extortion, George Carpenter, an unemployed auto worker of Detroit and his wife Bernice are shown being questioned by a city detective (seated) after the couple had allegedly confessed sending a letter to Daniel M. Sorensen, wealthy Toronto auto dealer, demanding $10,000. A portion of the extortion note which contained threats against the Sorensen children is shown below.

fire has been a constant menace to the town of Circleville.

"There have been several fires here that caused damage to the amount of $250,000, much more than would have been caused had there been adequate water for the use of firemen."

Reichelderfer testified that Delaware had had "practically no fire protection" for the last several years.

Engineers have determined that abundant water supplies would be available to the two towns under the system of dams to be constructed in the water conservancy system.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—How engineers at Fremont, Ohio had thrown up a sand-bag dam there to prevent a water shortage this year was cited before a court of 17 common pleas judges as proof of the need for the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district.

W. F. Schefflin, a civil engineer and city engineer at Fremont in 1913, said that the sand-bag barrier had been erected to force the water level high enough so that it would flow into the intake pipe at the waterworks.

Schefflin also carried a map of the city of Fremont and pointed out how one third of the city had been inundated in the 1913 floods. Nothing has been done since that time, he said, to protect the city from further floods.

The civil engineer stressed the fact that the conservancy district was needed in Fremont because "the water supply is low at the present time."

MINORS BARRED

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—Council Monday evening placed an amendment in its liquor control ordinance ordering that all entertainers or musicians employed in beer parlors or night clubs must be 21 years or older. The measure was supported by the Federation of Labor.

derstood large PWA grants will be distributed. In the final testimony taken yesterday, Prof. C. E. Sherman, of Ohio State University, testified that the stream flow in central Ohio would be sufficient to fill the proposed dams and keep them at a reasonable level. W. H. Alexander, U. S. meteorologist in Columbus, affirmed previous statements by backers of the plan that the system of lakes and reservoirs to be created would increase the rainfall in Ohio.

Prof. Wilbur Stout, state geologist, told members of the court that thousands of men in Ohio would be put out of work unless the underground water level was raised. He pointed out that the underground streams, feeding both industrial and domestic wells, had dropped alarmingly in the last few years.

CITES WATER FEAR

"Soon we will reach a point," he said, "where brine and sulphur water will push up through the sweetwater. That will mean disaster to hundreds of industries that depend on underground water supplies."

"In many cases municipal water supplies would not be able to stand the increased consumption caused by the industries switching from underground to surface water."

The father of Bert Eddy, Jr., missing 14-year-old Columbus youth, was in this city Monday evening hunting his son who disappeared from his home at 1522 S. High-st., Columbus, Monday, Nov. 26.

The boy, or someone answering his description, was reported seen south of Circleville last Wednesday.

He is five feet four inches tall, wears brown corduroy trousers, blue zipper jacket, black oxfords and gray spats. He has light brown hair and brown eyes. He was last seen when he left Barnett Junior high school after classes.

The boy's mother is bed-ridden with grief. The father could tell no reason why the youth would runaway from home although he believes that is what has happened.

U. S. Investigators In Protest Against Use as Actual "Gunmen"

WASHINGTON — The crack sleuthing force built up by the Bureau of Investigation in its sub-rosa revolt against its chief, J. Edgar Hoover and higher-ups of the Department of Justice.

The basis of the revolt is that the Bureau's operatives have been turned into a bunch of gunmen.

This, they claim, is not what they were hired for. The Bureau of Investigation is charged with exactly what its name implies — investigation. This requires skill, intelligence, long training, not necessarily brawn. As a result, and because the depression made jobs scarce, the Bureau enlisted some of the highest types of college men.

Take the recent casualties in the Bureau. Samuel Cowley, killed by Baby Face Nelson; W. Carter Baum, killed in the Dillinger hunt; and Francis J. Lackey wounded in the Brook Hart hunt; all were not only college graduates but in addition had law degrees.

It is among these university-trained operatives that the result is most intense. There also is resentment on the part of these operatives, that the work of the Bureau, usually clothed in secrecy, is attracting so much publicity.

The effectiveness of the Bureau has brought about the full glare of publicity on some of its members, notably the chief, Hoover, and Martin H. Purvis, his Chicago aide.

Unless conditions change, a gradual exodus of Justice Department operatives is not unlikely.

Georgia Corn

Georgia's famous corn whiskey may be very fine for some of the grizzled natives, but the members of the President's party don't think much of it.

David Lillenthal, Tennessee Valley mogul, was inquiring with a grin what the boys at Warm Springs thought of it. They shook their heads gravely. Lillenthal, feigning surprise, retorted:

"Well, the newspapermen ought to be able to stand it. As a matter of fact, this Georgia corn whiskey is very historic liquor."

With a wry face, some one in party snapped back:

"Yes, very historic. It's the reason Sherman made his march to the sea. He was looking for water."

Crack Down

It has been done so quietly that few know anything about it, but the President has just heaved a large sized brickbat at the motor moguls.

Basis for it was laid on November 2 when he announced a 90-day extension of the auto code. At that time he also promulgated a study of the possibility of changing automobile employment from a seasonal to an all-year-round basis.

This survey has now been launched, and therein lies the cup of gall for the motor magnates.

The latter had moved heaven and earth to persuade Roosevelt to have the study made by a board consisting of representatives of the Commerce, Interior and Labor departments, with Dr. Leo Wolman as chairman.

The President turned thumbs down on this proposal.

He put the investigation in the hands of Leon Henderson, ex-officio member of the NRA board, and Dr. Isidor Lubin, head of Bureau of Economic Warfare.

TRANSPACIFIC PLANE 'LOST' NEAR ISLANDS

Ulm Radios Gasoline Supply Low; Fails to Receive Beacons

NEARING HONOLULU

Coast Guard Cutter Is Ready to Assist Trio

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—With its gasoline supply slowly giving out the monoplane of Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm and his two companions was reported lost and flying blind over the Pacific ocean today within 200 miles of Hawaii.

A radio dispatch picked up by the Globe wireless reported Ulm was unable to pick up Hawaiian radio beacons.

The plight of the plane is considered so serious that a coast guard cutter is standing by ready to pick up the airmen should their plane crash into the ocean.

"We have very little gas left," Ulm radioed. "We need the beacon badly. We do not want to be forced to send an SOS. Tell them to shake it up with that beacon."

Later another radio was sent by Ulm which read "Tell them to use the emergency beacon we need help."

Co-Pilot G. M. Littlejohn was at the controls when the plane soared out through the Golden Gate late yesterday. He had some difficulty in getting the heavily loaded monoplane into the air. He taxied the entire three-eighths of a mile down the runway before getting off the runway. Three times the plane bounced one foot off the runway. On the fourth attempt, the Star of Australia soared upwards, narrowly skimming a row of automobiles at the end of the field.

Amelia Earhart Putnam, first woman to fly the Atlantic, was among the small crowd that waved them farewell.

The long over-water cruise is designed to prove feasibility of trans-Pacific commercial aviation.

STOPS PLANNED

Ulm expected to stop probably one day at Honolulu and then continue on to Fanning Island, 1,000 miles from Hawaii, thence to Suva, New Zealand and Australia.

The monoplane carried 700 gallons of gasoline which greatly retarded its normal 180-mile cruising speed to 138 miles an hour. After passing the halfway mark, and with the fuel supply diminishing at the rate of 28 gallons an hour into the two 225-horsepower Lynx motors, the monoplane picked up speed.

WHEELER FIELD, Honolulu, Dec. 4.—A crowd began gathering early today at this stopping point for trans-Pacific fliers when word flashed through Honolulu that Capt. Charles T. P. Ulm and his two companions were nearing Hawaii in their monoplane, "Star of Australia."

The populace, however, was not as excited by this flight as previous trans-Pacific dashes.

The people were more or less inclined to take trans-Pacific flights now as a matter of fact.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Real winter weather settled on the upper central states today in the wake of a swirling snowstorm that swept Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Heavy snows crippled transportation in southeastern Minnesota, where roads were blocked by drifts ten feet high. A record December snowfall of sixteen inches halted street car traffic in Duluth, Minn., and forced the public schools to close.

Falling temperatures followed the snowstorm. While near normal, the temperature of 25 degrees here was the coldest of the season.

Shipping on upper Lake Michigan fought high winds that imperiled ten boats fighting to make their harbors.

Heavy snow fell at St. Paul and Minneapolis while from four to six inches of snow fell in South Dakota.

The temperature fell to a low of 31 degrees here Monday evening after reaching a high mark of 47 degrees during the day. Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather man, reported.

Soviet May Execute 80
in Death of Secretary

MOSCOW, Dec. 4.—Thousands of bearing banners with mourning inscriptions thronged the route between the railway station and the Kremlin today when the body of Sergei M. Kirov, slain secretary of the Communist party central committee, arrived here and was carried behind a guard of honor to lie in state in the hall of columns.

Thousands of persons stood in line for hours to pay homage at the bier of the assassinated leader. Meanwhile 80 persons were in jail expected to be victims of the firing squad in a drive against the republic's enemies as a result of the assassination.

Feodor Medved, chief of the Commissariat of the interior's section at Leningrad, where the killing took place, and seven assistants are to be executed. They are not charged directly with complicity in the assassination, but with "negligence of their duty in protection of the state."

Jacob Agranov, first assistant to the commissar of the interior, has been appointed to fill Medved's place temporarily.

COUNTERFEITERS BALKED

CIVILIZATION once burned, branded or hanged without delay "coiners" or counterfeiters of money; today the penalties are only less severe. But the trade still goes on, as the latest roundup in New York proved. Eleven men and a woman are the latest quarry of the secret service, aided by local officers, and it seems to have been a "good collar." At any rate, about $2,000,000 in bad money has been impounded.

Skill with engraved plates, inks, paper making and chemicals is needed in counterfeiting, to say nothing of a trained personnel in the art of "showing." Yet year after year, in the face of all discouragements, counterfeiting goes on, in secret places, under more than secret conditions, with almost certain detection as reward. Possibly the least-exploited, yet most persistent, section of the secret service under the treasury department is that which has to do with counterfeiters. Yet discovery, conviction go on all the time with mostly only the high spots, as in the present instance, making the first page.

Counterfeiting is world-wide, international, expert. So are the men who track counterfeiters down. Robert Godby, director in New York, acting under Secretary Morgenthau in Washington, and his associates have cause for self-congratulation. The prisoners are a strange lot, no "second-story men," minor pilferers. After all, what have they gotten out of it? Probably long terms in prison; a reputation in their peculiar circle of having failed. But the law will tell you there is always a supply of substitutes ready to "take a chance."

DISMAL NOTE

A WORLD filled with woe of infinite varieties is made no "happier" by the news that seven carloads of spinach are about to leave Lenexa, Kansas, for markets throughout the country, ultimately to find their way into peaceful homes in which there are children who are deserving only of kindness. The situation is freighted with added dismay in consequence of the further announcement that there still remains at Lenexa "enough spinach of good quality to load 50 additional cars."

Coming at the approach of the Christmas season, when peace and good will should prevail, and when the land is struggling desperately, and with some show of success, to shake off the grip of economic depression, the news from Lenexa is discouraging. Even now, long before the actual arrival of the spinach, we can see adamant mothers, grimaced and steely-eyed and animated by a fanatic urge, approach their innocent and helpless children with the green stuff, insensitive to all considerations of charity and mercy.

It is a hard world at best and it is made no easier by the enterprise of the farmers of Lenexa and those of Chrystal City, Texas, which delights in the rather dubious distinction of being "the recognized spinach capital of the world."

North and West are ready to rule the house, leaving East and South holding just a bunch of duces.

Fear of death is difficult to reconcile with the manner in which some motorists round a curve.

New York had a wolf scare and a ghost scare on the same day. There haven't been any Indians around lately.

Ventilating systems soon will be perfected so it won't be necessary to open windows. On trains it isn't even possible.

The new Premier of France starts with the advantage of being six feet, six inches tall, which is rather fortunate. The job plays havoc with the stature of statesmen.

The 1935 cars haven't put in an appearance as yet but it is safe to assume that they will be changed just enough to make the motoring world dissatisfied with the old ones.

After all, it becomes rather difficult to understand the reluctance to approve a national lottery when we think of the freedom and abandon with which the people once purchased Peruvian bonds.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXIV

Caroline started to express sympathy to Mrs. Barnes, but was interrupted by the woman whose name she did not know. "I'll have to run, Sarah," the woman said, "my folks ain't had their supper yet."

Mrs. Barnes nodded and she departed. "My Jim hasn't got home," Mrs. Barnes said to Caroline. "I hate to tell him about Lillie—he worships her so, and this is no time for him to be worried out of work and all."

"How is Lillie?" Caroline asked. "She's pretty sick, but we can't tell yet. I wish I could get the medicine the doctor ordered, but I'll have to wait for Jim. Mrs. Groves hasn't got a car in her family either, and it's too far to walk to a drug store. And the doctor said to get it as soon as I could."

"Give me the prescription," Caroline said. "I'll get it for you when I've been to Blake's for mother."

When she was gone Mrs. Groves said: "You might have introduced me more proper like, Sarah, but never mind. I'll bet they're having ice cream again. I never heard tell of such extravagance."

Caroline hurried. But before she reached home her father had gone off with the car. "I'll have to ask Malcolm to take me on his motor cycle," she said to her mother, and was gone in a flash.

The ice cream melted in the car.

Malcolm was just finishing a generous portion of peach cobbler when she entered the Stuart's dining room. He too was dressed in clothes he wore to the U. "I'm afraid we'll be late tonight," Caroline said, and told him what she wanted. He said: "I feel like playing hooky anyway. Let's go to a movie."

But they did not go to a movie. At the drug store they waited half an hour while the prescription was made up. A half hour in which trouble continued to stalk the Barnes's household. When they arrived there they found a small crowd gathered before the store. The air was charged with the horror of a serious accident.

Caroline went in at once. Malcolm remained outside. Some one told him that Jim Barnes had just been brought home badly hurt. He'd been getting off a trolley car and was hit by an automobile. No, he didn't seem to be dying, but one of his legs was smashed, Malcolm's former guessed.

Malcolm was spared hearing further gruesome details. Caroline came hurrying out to him, white and trembling. "You heard?" she said. "Oh, how terrible!"

He led her down the walk to his motorcycle. "Let's go and get Mom," he said steadily.

"They just brought him in," Caroline choked. "I'm to telephone Dr. Shultz. If I can't get him I'm going to call an ambulance. No one in there seemed to know what to do."

"I know," Malcolm said. "Can you go on alone?"

The thought in his mind was that Barnes might need a tourniquet on his injured leg. He pushed his way into the house, and found someone holding a glass of water to the groaning man's lips. Malcolm caught it. "He may be hurt internally," he said shortly, "don't give him anything to drink."

He examined the leg and found that it was bleeding profusely. No one else in the room knew how to apply a tourniquet, but Malcolm succeeded in getting the things he wanted. It was crude work, but Dr. Shultz said when he arrived shortly that it was effective. He had, he added, summoned an ambulance.

Another physician also arrived, one sent by the traction company upon receiving the report of the car conductor. He examined the patient and approved his immediate transfer to a hospital.

The danger and rush accompanying the ambulance brought further excitement to the block, but when

Jim Barnes had been taken away in it and those in command in the house had cleared it of people who could not be of use Mrs. Stuart found to be the one who was giving orders.

She had sent Malcolm away too and he went to see that Caroline was all right. The girl was trying to quiet her mother's upset nerves. Malcolm did not go in.

"Why, in heaven's name, if you must have an answer," Alma said snappishly, "don't you choose some one of your own station in life? It really goes beyond good taste to this association of yours with this young man."

Caroline turned away without answering. She was too tired to argue all over again that Malcolm was of her station in life as she saw it. Money did not count now—only character. Malcolm had that. Family? If character came from family, then Malcolm's father and she have been as fine as hers. Not so fortunate, perhaps, but that, she believed, was the only difference.

She went out and sat on the front steps. Moonflowers that she and Malcolm had planted were opening in a light frost from the soft darkness. Her navy blue dress made her indistinguishable, but she could see the tip of a cigarette glowing on the Stuart steps. A warm feeling of appreciation, of faith, came over her as she thought of Malcolm there, thinking, perhaps, of her. She knew it was a selfish feeling, but she was glad of his devotion when she had nothing to give in return, but it was too healing to her injured pride and helplessness to be rejected.

After a while she saw someone in a light dress go up the street and sit down beside Malcolm. A match flared. Caroline saw the newcomer's face clearly enough to recognize it, and the recognition brought her a shock.

Caroline had heard something of Cecilia Codden, the girl who sat beside Malcolm from his mother. Mrs. Stuart was not given to gossiping freely but she disliked Cecilia intensely. Caroline had smiled at her reasons, but now she felt vaguely disturbed in the same way. Cecilia, whose careful name had been corrupted to Sissey, was a "getter," a "man-eater," and she had openly cast her bright blue eyes on Malcolm.

Caroline got up and went into the house. What happened to Malcolm, of course, his own affair, but it would be disappointing to discover in him any response to the wiles of a girl like Cecilia.

The last thing before she fell asleep she sensibly assured herself that Malcolm couldn't have got up and left the girl there, hithered her presence was welcome or not. But still her mind remained unwarrantably accusing.

The next morning she hadn't forgotten it either. Cecilia simply wasn't worthy of his attention. Anyone interested in him would tell him that. She would, if he gave her an opening. But he didn't, for he had already chosen Cecilia.

The girl had known that his mother was attending Mrs. Barnes and the sick child, had seen him swooning on the steps, his head under the porch, and she had not hesitated to go to his aid. She had not hesitated to go to his aid.

Caroline asked about his mother, what had happened at the Barnes's, how the child was. His mother, Malcolm said, had spent most of the night there. Another neighbor had relieved her at three o'clock. Before that he himself had gone to the hospital. Mr. Barnes's condition was as well as might be expected, he'd been told. He said nothing about Cecilia.

"What in the world will that poor woman do?" Caroline exclaimed.

"Charity will have to take care of them. Mom says they're flat. Mrs. Barnes is prostrated."

That evening Caroline called at the Barnes's. Her arm was filled with flowers. But at the end of the hour she spent in the house she had made a mental list of more useful things to bring.

Her mother argued that she had more than enough to do without concerning herself with that afflicted household. "A visiting nurse was there today," Mrs. Rutledge told her. Dr. Shultz will see that they get proper medical attention. And the neighbors are helping. You aren't needed in this very foolishness of you to risk your own health."

Caroline knew that she was allowing her kindly impulses to lead her into danger. She should, in all common sense, leave the assistance of the family to those better qualified to help than she. But she knew, too, that the visiting nurses were not staying night and day, and the neighbors were women with heavy burdens of their own. Besides, it had quickly become apparent that the experience she had gained at the hospital, this very nursery was broader than she had realized. Lillie seemed to find her ministrations soothing. And in that fact Caroline found balm for the feeling of inferiority that persistently crept into her morale.

For a moment the restless nurse mounted, showing each day a higher point, the doctor ordered cool, wet wrappings for the burning body. Someone was needed in constant attendance at the bedside.

Caroline gave up her studies at the academy and stayed with Lillie. Sight of the poor little blighted body brought a sob to her throat, when she lifted away the towels that so soon became heated and replaced them with others wrong from cool fresh water.

For a moment the restless nurse would lie still, the thin arms relaxed on one of the many fine linen sheets from the Rutledge supply, then the tossing and agony would begin anew.

It was Caroline who convinced Mrs. Barnes that the child's curbs must be short as the doctor said. It was Caroline who kept ice in the house, who brought extra pillows so that they might be constantly changed and cooled, who bought the rubber sheet for the child to lie on, who brought rubber-soled shoes for those who shared in the nursing, who paid for medical supplies from her own meagre wages.

Delirium came in the third week and then Caroline, who was beginning to feel languid and uneasy, could not desert. Lillie called for her constantly with the frantic, unknown appeal of a mother who wants only relief from physical torment. Mrs. Barnes was hurt that in so short a time Caroline's ability to ease her pain had become so fixed in the child's mind that in unconsciousness is replaced filial yearning. Caroline to show how grateful to the girl's help now than before. For, as Mrs. Rutledge had feared, the typhoid had broken out in other homes, threatened to reach epidemic proportions in South Town.

She was frantic with worry over Caroline, and time proved her fears justified. Caroline dragged along, more or less an "ambulatory case," before loss of strength finally drove her to bed.

She became so ill that her life was despaired of. The doctor said bluntly that she had no reserve of vitality and only expert medical attention and skilled nursing could save her. There were other cases in the block; the street there was closed to general traffic, the clocks in the Rutledge house were muffled, the telephone bell was wrapped in cotton, the doorbells were silenced and a car was laid on the outside steps. The door latches were padded with felt and every hinge about the place was oiled. The house was almost as silent as a tomb. Those within it spoke in whispers, and yet at intervals some sound, vastly magnified by the girl's sharpened hearing, brought the flicker of nervous shock over her prostrate body.

It worked out better this way, because Bette's public was lined up at the box office waiting for her when she got there.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Another "Cinderella story" has come true in Hollywood! The youthful charm of Jean Parker, that little more than a year and a half ago graced a poster for the Olympic Games, has carried her to the highest possible position in a screen career. She was recently given full star rating on the current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer season program with "Have a Heart" as her first starring vehicle to be shown Wednesday and Thursday at the Cliftona Theatre.

This places Miss Parker in the distinguished group of star notables that includes Greta Garbo, Marion Davies, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery.

"My one great hope is that I will always be able to retain my own personality through every role that I portray on the screen," declared Miss Parker when the honor of stardom was conferred upon her.

High Blood Pressure Is Common Symptom Here

"High Pressure" Living Is a Frequent Cause of This Trouble, Says Dr. Copeland

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

RECENTLY I DINED with a medical man from England. During the course of our conversation he referred to the splendid physique of most Americans, but wondered why so many ultimately succumb to high blood pressure, heart disease and other disturbances of the blood system.

It is a fact that high blood pressure is all too common in this country. High blood pressure is a warning sign. It should result in serious effort to correct the underlying cause. Those individuals who have normal blood pressure are fortunate and should do all they can to keep it.

Too many persons fail to realize that they are suffering from high blood pressure. In consequence they do not take the necessary precautions before some serious damage has been done. Often it is too late to correct the disturbance and all that can be done then is to prevent further damage to the body. The practice of making regular visits to the doctor would have spared you this danger.

If you have not recently consulted with your physician I would advise that you do so now. Have your blood pressure taken at least once a year and more frequently if the doctor thinks it necessary. If you are told you have high blood pressure, do not become alarmed. There is no need for apprehension providing you follow the advice and instructions given.

I am sure you will agree with me when I say too many persons are careless about their health. As a group, Americans are prone to excessive and hurried eating, irregular eating hours, and inadequate hours of rest. In order to reduce to the utmost the stress and strain of modern life, it is essential to have reasonable rest periods and long hours of sleep at night.

We are all more or less interested in sports and athletics. But it is important to realize that such activities are of value if taken always in a spirit of fun and play. When indulged in perpetually as strenuous, bitter contests, harm may follow. Like other habits and activities, sports should be practiced in moderation.

CONTEST TO SCALE DOWN INCOME TAX RATES STAGERS

SPONSOR SAYS RATE NOT HIGH

"People Will Vote Much Higher Rate," Ward Warns; Dr. Schultz Heard.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—The controversial subject of rates in the Ward income tax bill, a part of the 4-point emergency tax program before the "lame duck" session of the Ohio legislature, today drew the attention of the senate taxation committee.

As the bill now stands in the form in which the lower house passed it, along with a 3 per cent retail sales tax, an increase in utilities excise tax and re-enactment of the 1-cent liquid fuel tax, the rates are 2 to 6 per cent on earned income; and 3 to 9 per cent on "unearned" incomes, including those in excess of $25,000.

SCALE DOWN RATES
There was every indication that anti-income tax members would put up a bitter fight to scale down these rates to 1 to 5 per cent on earned income and one and one-half times that amount on unearned income.

Sensitive to the undercurrent in the senate against the adoption of any income tax at whatever rates, Rep. P. E. Ward (R) Chardon, author of the House bill, appeared before the tax committee to warn the members that if his bill is not passed, "a far more drastic" income tax in all probability will be voted by the people at the next general election.

"The rate even at the top of this bill—9 per cent on unearned income," said Ward, "is not very high compared to the tax burden on general property. It is the equivalent of only about 5.4 mills on the dollar, whereas the real estate tax runs as high as 30 mills in many instances." Sen. D. J. Gunsett (D) Van Wert, tax committee chairman, doubted that the income tax bill would be reported out by his group before tomorrow. Nor was

House and consider in its stead a similar bill by Sen. W. H. Berner (D) Monroeville.

Chief difference in the House and Senate bills is that Berner's does not contain a clause exempting material denominated "liquid fuel" but used as an ingredient in the manufacture of paint. The Pollock bill exempts all "liquid fuel" not consumed as such. Some senate tax committee members frowned upon the exemption.

FOR SALES TAX

The tax committee heard Dr. Arch D. Schultz, research director for the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, condemn a state income tax which he said was unnecessary. The 3 per cent sales tax and affiliated measures, he contended, would adequately meet all of Ohio's needs for new revenue.

Recalling that Tax Commissioner Carlton Dargusch had estimated the emergency 4-point program including an income tax, would under the House allocation plan, provide the public schools with $55,800,000 annually, Dr. Schultz pointed out that this is almost 60 per cent of the total anticipated expenditures for schools during the coming year.

GROWERS BEGIN PRUNING EARLY

Fruit growers are apt to start early with their pruning this season. They have begun work on their bearing apple trees, according to F. H. Beach, extension horticulturist for the Ohio State University.

Beach, author of a "bulletin," "Pruning Fruit Trees," available from county agricultural agents, believes that the pruning job should begin with the bearing apple trees, plums and sour cherries.

Grape pruning time comes in February, he declares, before the sap begins to run in the vines. Pruned later, they bleed.

After the severe part of the winter season is over, in March, Beach's calendar calls for pruning of peaches, raspberries and sweet cherries.

In general, says the horticulturist, young trees respond better to spring pruning, especially fall-set young trees; pruning these should always be deferred until spring, regardless of kind and variety.

Pruning offers the best way to eliminate from the crop the small, two- and three-quarter inch apples, the unprofitable size, according to Beach. It also leads to a better color, opening the tree to the sunlight, besides permitting more thorough spraying.

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

7 NEW CAGE MENTORS ON COUNTY LIST

COURT HOPES HIGH

With material at hand better than fair and a good spirit prevailing, Circleville high school eagles swing into action Friday evening on the Circleville Athletic club court with Williamsport as the foe. The Tigers will present a well-balanced, not flashy but well-conditioned team against the Deer Creek crew.

A preliminary will be played between the reserve teams of the schools with Johnny Heskell handling the whistle for both games.

COUNTYANS PLAY

Another county season also is officially opened Friday with New Holland and Ashville again as the standouts. What team in the county might rise to defeat either is uncertain at this time but there are several with more than average strength.

NINE IN COUNTRY UNBEATEN, UNTIED

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Only nine football teams in the country came through the 1934 season undefeated and untied. Ten other teams were undefeated, but tied at least once.

The undefeated and untied elevens follow:

Alabama	9	287	32
Augustana (Ill.)	9	165	47
Birmingham-Southern	9	143	34
Minnesota	8	270	38
Kirkville Teachers	8	180	13
Baylor Texas Teachers	8	116	6
Tulsa	8	91	9
Trinity (Conn.)	7	187	13
Upper Iowa	6	108	26

GRANGE TO COACH?

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Harold Red Grange today was reported seriously considering several football coaching offers, among them being one from the University of Florida.

BOBCATS IN ACTION

Ohio university will get a head start on other Buckeye basketball teams this winter. The Bobcats, coached by Brandon T. "Butch" Grover, will play Bliss college of Columbus at Athens Wednesday night of this week, and then will meet Ohio State at Columbus Saturday night.

PICKED FOR THE MIDDLE OF ALL-STAR EASTERN LINE

Captains of eastern teams and others which met eastern opponents select these three men as the middle of the all-star eastern line. The guards are Hartwig and Stillman, and the center is Shotwell, Pittsburgh.

Bowling News

The Franklin Inn bowling team upset the apple-cart Monday evening by turning back the Baker five in their straight games in city league competition. The Inns rolled 846-863-893 for a 2602 total. The Baker total was 2405.

The Coca Colas came to life to smear the Hot Shots in three taking the first after a hot struggle but coasting through in the final two games. The soft drink total was 907-914-895 for a splendid 2,716 total. The Hot Shots accumulated only 2,496.

Individual scores were:
Franklin Inns: Elsea 507, Warner 559, Ekins 545, Shea 507, Schreiber 481.
Bakers: Riffin 518, Vining 478, Rush 453, Wolf 413, Baker 543.
Coca Colas: Herdman, 538, Boggs 461, Lemon 559, Delong 556, Wotts 599.

Hot Shots: Bartholomew 476, Pearce 461, Fowler 539, Hegele 495, Campbell 522.

Resignation of William "Navy Bill" Ingram, as head football coach at the University of California, was followed immediately by appointment of Leonard "Stub" Allison, Ingram's first assistant, as his successor.

Ingram, former Navy coach, whose $10,000 contract still had a year to run, announced he was quitting football to enter business in San Francisco. Criticism of his regime by alumni and undergraduates had been severe, and in reply Ingram blamed lack of co-operation on the student body for California's losses. Allison is an ex-assistant coach at Wisconsin.

MONAHAN ON MYTHICAL 11

Central Press Captains' Team Announced; Borries Placed At Quarterback.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—Three athletes from the far west, one from the south, four from the east—if you count Pittsburgh in that category—three from the mid-west comprise the all-American team selected by captains of major football teams throughout the country for the Central Press association.

The first team includes: Ends, Moscrip of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota; tackles, Steen of Syracuse and Theodoratus of Washington state; guards, Hartwig of Pitt and Monahan of Ohio State; center, Shotwell of Pitt; quarterback, Borries of Navy; halfbacks, Lund of Minnesota and Howell of Alabama; fullback, Grayson of Stanford.

Ability rather than the size of the player's scrapbook decided the captains' team.

No Ohio State man made the second or third teams but Wendt, Hamrick, Jones, Wetzel and Heekin received honorable mention.

STUDENT WRITERS NAME ALL-STATE

By GILSON WRIGHT

Five University of Cincinnati players, two each from Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio, and one each from Miami and Marshall make up an all-Buckeye conference first team as selected in a poll of student sports editors of Buckeye conference college newspapers, which was announced Tuesday.

On the second team were five Ohio Wesleyan men, two each from Cincinnati and Miami, and one each from Marshall and Ohio.

John Turley, Ohio Wesleyan ace quarterback; Ollie Savatsky, Miami, end, and Art Lewis, Ohio tackle, were unanimous first team choices. The first team is as follows:

Savatsky, Miami, LE; Lewis, Ohio, LT; Mills, Ohio Wesleyan, LG; Williams, Cincinnati, C; Priole, Ohio, RG.

G. Smith, Cincinnati, RT; Duncan, Cincinnati, RE; Turley, Ohio Wesleyan, QB; Zontini, Marshall, LH; Nolting, Cincinnati, RH; Gant, Cincinnati, FB.

This team, of interest because it represents the student viewpoint, was chosen by Alan R. Vogeler, Cincinnati, of the Cincinnati Bearcat; Willis Brown, Mt. Blanchard, of the Ohio Wesleyan Transcript; Frank Burns, Cleveland, of the Miami Student; Morry Rabin, Cleveland, of the Ohio Green and White, and Earl Zellerbach, Kittanning, Pa., of the Marshall Parthenon.

TEMPLE PICKED FOR SOUTH GAME

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 4.—The Owls of Temple University, coached by Pop Warner, will journey south to meet the Green wave of Tulane in New Orleans first Sugar Bowl classic to be played here on New Year's day.

This was announced today by the Sugar Bowl committee after receiving acceptances from both teams late last night.

Temple, rated as one of the outstanding teams of the east, was invited because of its impressive record under the direction of Coach Warner, originator of the "double wingback system." The Owls were undefeated this year, although in ties with Indiana and Bucknell.

KADLIC HONORED

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4.—John P. Kadlic, '35, of Belvoir, O., varsity quarterback at Princeton for the last three years, today was the proud possessor of the John Prentiss Poe cup.

The cup was presented to him last night at the annual football banquet held at the Princeton Inn and attended by 200 members of the varsity, scrub, freshman and lightweight squads, university officials and coaches.

Given in memory of John P. Poe, '35, third of the famous Poe brothers, who was killed during the World War while serving with the black watch, the cup is awarded annually to a member of the Princeton varsity eleven who has shown himself outstanding in loyalty, courage, modesty, perseverance and good sportsmanship.

HOW TO DANCE

"The Continental"

In 8 Easy Lessons

The Third Movement

Now we are in the THIRD MOVEMENT of that sensational new dance of joy and romance, "THE CONTINENTAL," as interpreted by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "The Gay Divorcee." It is the Tap Step.

The couple separate, facing each other, and execute a triple tap and sideways-walk from right to left, and back again, through sixteen beats, or four measures.

The gentleman strikes his right heel against the floor, then does two taps with his left toe—one as it goes forward and one as it comes back. This is accomplished in one beat of music... one count of the four-count measures. It is a rapid, One-Two-Three-to-One proposition.

On the upbeat of Four, first measure, the gentleman picks up his left foot to strike the heel on the floor at the first point of the second measure. On the count, Two, he is returned to a position beside the right foot. On Three, the right foot is advanced and the heel struck against the floor. It is returned on Four; whereupon the routine is repeated once.

White House Key

Emergency Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins was telling some friends what a "great guy" he considered Chester C. Davis, Administrator of the AAA. "Chet's a fine fellow," Hopkins said. "He and I are very good friends. Why, we even got out Phi Beta Kappa keys in the same manner." "How was that?" one of the friends inquired. Hopkins grinned. "Well, now, just ask some of the boys around town how they got their keys. You can get them in college, or you can get them the way I did—a long time after I left college. All you got to do is have a friend on the PBK committee." "Say," observed the friend, "you know the President has a key, and he didn't get his in college." "Oh, oh," laughed Hopkins. "My error."

Merry-Go-Round

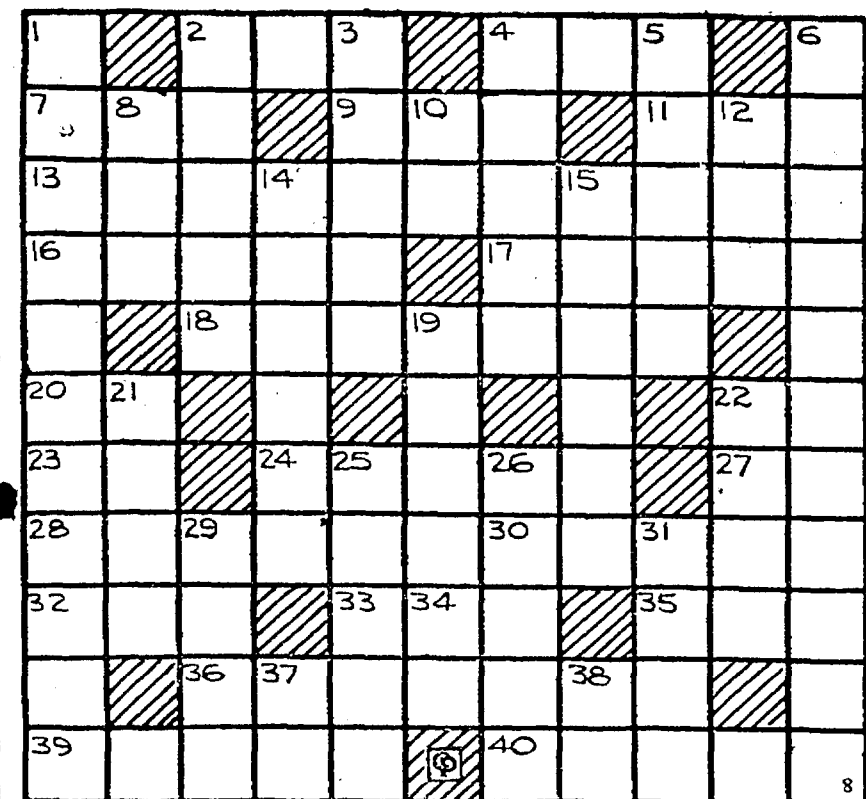

Carpets, drapes and other dirt-collecting furnishings have been banished from the new White House offices. The floors are covered with moppable fabric and the walls are painted. In the center of the ceiling in the President's private office is moulded in plaster the Seal of the United States. Solicitor General James Crawford Biggs says life in his post would really be enjoyable if there were no tax cases. He has 90 lawyers on his staff who do nothing but work

SMITH TELLS 17 JUDGES OF FIRE DANGERS

Inadequate Water Supply Is Seen as Another Reason for River Conservancy.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—The menace of fire, which for years has threatened the entire towns of Delaware and Circleville was seen driven back here today by the action of the 17-judge conservancy court which approved the creation of the Scioto-Sandusky Water Conservancy District.

The judges' decision marked the first step in a plan which will furnish the towns a water supply sufficient for both domestic and fire fighting purposes throughout the year.

SMITH STATEMENT

Although not called to the stand at the conservancy district hearing yesterday, James I. Smith, head of a large canning firm at Circleville, and John C. Reichelderfer, county surveyor of Delaware, both testified through depositions that present water supplies of the two towns made it impossible for firemen to properly combat fires.

Smith's testimony, in effect, was that "for the last several years

Alleged Extortionists Held

George Carpenter

Bernice Carpenter

Held on charges of attempted extortion, George Carpenter, an unemployed auto worker of Detroit and his wife Bernice are shown being questioned by a city detective (seated) after the couple had allegedly confessed sending a letter to Daniel M. Sorensen, wealthy Toronto auto dealer, demanding $10,000. A portion of the extortion note which contained threats against the Sorensen children is shown below.

fire has been a constant menace to the town of Circleville.

"There have been several fires here that caused damage to the amount of $250,000, much more than would have been caused had there been adequate water for the use of firemen."

Reichelderfer testified that Delaware had had "practically no fire protection" for the last several years.

Engineers have determined that abundant water supplies would be available to the two towns under the system of dams to be constructed in the water conservancy system.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4.—How engineers at Fremont, Ohio had thrown up a sand-bag dam there to prevent a water shortage this year was cited before a court of 17 common pleas judges as proof of the need for the Scioto-Sandusky conservancy district.

W. F. Schefflin, a civil engineer and city engineer at Fremont in 1913, said that the sand bag barrier had been erected to force the water level high enough so that it would flow into the intake pipe at the waterworks.

Schefflin also carried a map of the city of Fremont and pointed out how one third of the city had been inundated in the 1913 floods. Nothing has been done since that time, he said, to protect the city from further floods.

The civil engineer stressed the fact that the conservancy district was needed in Fremont because "the water supply is low at the present time."

JUDGES FAVOR

derstood large PWA grants will be distributed.

In the final testimony taken yesterday, Prof. C. E. Sherman, of Ohio State University, testified that the stream flow in central Ohio would be sufficient to fill the proposed dams and keep them at a reasonable level. W. H. Alexander, U. S. meteorologist in Columbus, affirmed previous statements by backers of the plan that the system of lakes and reservoirs to be created would increase the rainfall in Ohio.

Prof. Wilbur Stout, state geologist, told members of the court that thousands of men in Ohio would be put out of work unless the underground water level was raised. He pointed out that the underground streams, feeding both industrial and domestic wells, had dropped alarmingly in the last few years.

CITES WATER FEAR

"Soon we will reach a point," he said, "where brine and sulphur water will push up through the sweetwater. That will mean disaster to hundreds of industries that depend on underground water supplies."

"In many cases municipal water supplies would not be able to stand the increased consumption caused by the industries switching from underground to surface water."

The father of Bert Eddy, Jr., missing 14-year-old Columbus youth, was in this city Monday evening hunting his son who disappeared from his home at 1522 S. High-st., Columbus, Monday, Nov. 26.

The boy, or someone answering his description, was reported seen south of Circleville last Wednesday.

He is five feet four inches tall, wears brown corduroy trousers, blue zipper jacket, black oxfords and gray spats. He has light brown hair and brown eyes. He was last seen when he left Barnett Junior high school after classes.

The boy's mother is bed-ridden with grief. The father could tell no reason why the youth would runaway from home although he believes that is what has happened.

TOO SAFE HIDING PLACE

DEBRECZEN, Hungary.—A wallet stuffed with bank-notes was found behind the cashier's desk in the Golden Bull, famous inn now being reconstructed.

An examination proved it belonged to Lajos Bereczky, the head waiter. It had been stolen from him 12 years ago.

The thief evidently hid it behind the cashier's desk, intending to bring it out when the hue and cry had died down. But it had slipped so far down that he could not reach it.
